Group Voyagers, Inc.*, is an organization licensed by the United States Department of the Treasury, Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC), CFR 515.565(b) and authorized to provide those who register as participants in our programs to visit Cuba legally for educational people-to-people interactions. Our itineraries provide a full-time schedule of people-to-people educational exchange activities designed to result in meaningful interactions between our travelers and individuals in Cuba. United States law requires that all participants in our programs adhere to the full-time schedule of people-to-people activities.

Due to the nature of the program, United States law requires adherence to a special set of guidelines for travel on these unique programs. Please read these guidelines carefully, and call our special Cuba connection line at 855.522.4880 or visit www.GlobusJourneys.com/Cuba if you have questions.

Legal Travel to Cuba

- You will travel with Globus or Cosmos on a people-to-people educational exchange program, operated under an OFAC general license, and you will therefore be legally licensed and authorized to travel to Cuba. The Globus family of brands previously applied for and received individual licenses from OFAC. Thus, travelers with Globus or Cosmos can be confident that our itineraries are compliant with all OFAC requirements.
- You should be aware that you are not traveling to Cuba as a “tourist.” You will be traveling as part of a people-to-people educational exchange program and must participate in all program activities.

About our People-to-People Educational Exchange Programs

- Globus offers several different programs to the island nation of Cuba, all featuring full-time schedules of people-to-people educational exchanges and allowing you to see everything, from the bustling streets of Havana to the tranquil waters of Eastern Cuba. You can even take to the coastline of Cuba and experience it by cruise ship, making stops around the island along the way. On our Cosmos program, you will explore some of Cuba’s most historic towns, the capital city of Havana, and the country’s rich tobacco-growing region. All itineraries start with an overnight stay in Miami, and welcome briefing. Participants fly as a group to and from Cuba. Full details are available in our Globus Cuba brochure as well as on our website.
- Under the requirements set forth by OFAC, you must participate in a full-time schedule of people-to-people activities. These activities will provide a rewarding cultural and educational exchange and give you the opportunity to engage directly with the Cuban people. Our experience has found that Cubans are interested and well informed about world events, and are open to discussing the pros and cons of their country.
- While full participation in our scheduled program is required during the day, you are able to explore on your own during early morning hours or in the evenings.
- People-to-people interactions allow you to share your culture and ideas with the Cuban people while learning about them at the same time. These interactions rely on you getting involved in conversations and interactions with local Cubans. You will travel with a Globus or Cosmos Group Leader as well as a Cuban National Tour Director who will help facilitate these interactions.
- Things work differently in Cuba than here at home. Activities that have been scheduled far in advance can sometimes become unavailable for a number of different reasons. The purpose of the trip is to have meaningful interactions with the locals and if the planned people-to-people educational exchange isn’t available, rest assured that another will be substituted that will be just as enriching.

About our People-to-People Educational Exchange Programs (continued)

- Our Globus or Cosmos Group Leaders and Cuban National Tour Directors are trained and experienced professionals fluent in English as well as in Spanish.
- Small groups of no more than 24-30 participants ensure our travelers and the Cuban people will get the most out of your people-to-people educational/cultural exchange program.
- Checks, credit cards, and debit cards issued by United States banks were not previously usable in Cuba; this is changing with new regulations, and more businesses will start to accept these for purchases or withdrawals. Travelers are advised to check with their institution before traveling to Cuba to determine whether their institution has established the necessary mechanisms for its credit or debit cards to be used in Cuba.
- It is still advisable to bring cash in order to make purchases in Cuba, as many places will most likely not accept credit cards. Travelers should plan to travel with enough cash to cover your needs for the trip. U.S. Dollars, Canadian Dollars, or Euros can be exchanged for Cuban Convertible Pesos (CUC) at the airport, exchange bureaus, banks, or hotels. You cannot obtain Cuban currency in the United States. For your convenience, very little spending money is needed for this program, as the majority of meals, activities, and gratuities are included. You should plan to bring as much cash as you would normally spend on incidentals while traveling elsewhere.
- As required by Cuban government regulations, Cuban health insurance is included in the airline ticket cost. This protects you should you need medical assistance while in Cuba. The following coverage applies: $25,000 to cover emergency medical costs incurred in Cuba and a maximum of $7,000 evacuation insurance provided only if a Cuban doctor states that evacuation must happen in order to receive adequate treatment. Globus and Cosmos also offer Travel Protection Plus. See our brochure or website for details.
- There are no longer daily spending limits for Americans traveling in Cuba. Any items brought back to the United States, including alcohol and tobacco, must be imported for personal use, and limits on duty and tax exemptions will apply.
